PAPERS & PRESENTATIONS

"Borderland Narratives: Public discourse and what stories about crossing the US-Mexico border can tell us," Master's Thesis

May 2011

Academic Excellence Showcase 2008

May 2008

During May 2008's Academic Excellence Day at Western Oregon University, I presented a rough cut of my first ethnographic documentary, entitled, "Far from Home: The Field Experience," which may be viewed and downloaded on my research page. This short film drew from footage taken on the US-Mexico Border at Agua Prieta, during the first Applied Anthropology field school, during the summer of 2007. It displays the often challenging field experience for the participating students (who had never done field work), and for the advising professor (who had never managed and advised students while in the field), while also introducing the harsh realities of life on the border, and the people who survive it every day. Through the making of this film, I taught myself how to operate a video camera, and the basics of Adobe Premiere Pro 1.5.

"Hometown Pride: The Medi(a)tion of a Community's Identity," Undergraduate Thesis

My undergraduate thesis is published and located in Western Oregon University's Hamersly Library as well as in the Honors Center.
